A Message from
Mike Flanagan, Superintendent of Public Instruction and
Kathleen N. Straus, President, State Board of Education

The Michigan Department of Education and State Board of Education, along with our collaborative partners, are pleased to invite you to the 2007 Michigan After-school Collaborative Conference. The conference will offer workshops of excellent quality, a keynote speaker with broad after-school experience and expertise, and time for peer sharing.

The State Board of Education has a long-standing and major interest in and commitment to out-of-school time programs for children and youth. In 2003, the State Board of Education approved Model Standards for Out-of-School Time Programs in Michigan. These high-quality standards explain what is necessary to go beyond keeping kids safe and healthy after school; they include provisions for improving our students' academic, social, artistic, and athletic development through the extended learning opportunities that can be provided during this important portion of their lives.

During the past several years, Michigan has made significant strides toward increased availability of quality after-school programs for Michigan's children and youth. The Department of Education and State Board of Education are proud that the Michigan After-School Partnership is managed through the Department of Education. This partnership of after-school organizations, agencies, and programs has been developed to ensure that all children have the opportunity for quality after-school programs. The Michigan Department of Education has taken a leadership role in national initiatives to enhance extended learning and enrichment opportunities in all out-of-school time areas.

This conference is an opportunity for enriching Michigan's youth by empowering you, the out-of-school time professional. You are invited to register for this special conference and to join your colleagues in an exciting opportunity.

We look forward to the chance to thank you for the work you are doing and to welcome you as a conference attendee.
